Volume XLIX - 1970

TABLE OF CONTENTS

JANUARY/FEBRUARY 1970

This Business Tomorrow 2
Four AT&T executives discuss the expected demands of the '70s and how the Bell System is preparing to meet them.

Super Bowl, 1980 by John B. Langer 12
With the onslaught of electronic gadgetry, football becomes a game for the birds.

Outward Bound: A Rugged Climb to Self-Discovery 14
Often-gruelling Outward Bound courses are offering disadvantaged youths and business managers a chance to learn something about human nature and themselves.

The Future Is Not Inevitable by John Kettle 18
A writer-futurist observes that many popular predictions about the next 30 years ain't necessarily so.

A Light Is Born by Marvin Elkoff 24
A free-lance writer traces the genealogy of a new light source at Bell Laboratories.

A Jazz Man Looks at Rock by Ira Gitler 29
A long-time jazz fan asks the musical question, "What is this thing called rock?"

Bell Reports 33
A summary of significant developments in communications.

MARCH/APRIL 1970

Progress Through Patents by Martin J. Sikora 2
An old invention, the patent, continues to benefit innovators seeking new additions to our material good.

What Makes Cities Important by Ron Abler 10
Why some urban centers have become dominant over others suggests some intriguing possibilities for the future.

Business and the Box Office by Richard W. Hall 16
The unlikely coalition of business and the arts, with a dash of imagination, is offering new hope for cultural projects in financial straits.

XUM

The American Dream and the World Imperative by Rita Fuhr 20
Views of a 21-year-old college student.

The Lost Paradise and the New Liberation by Saul David 26
Comparison of two generations-by a middle-aged critic.

New Path for a New Light 30
A pictorial study of research with fiber optics as a possible transmission medium for laser beams.

Bell Reports 32
A summary of significant developments in communications.

MAY/JUNE 1970

From School to Work by August C. Bolino 2
The educational system needs a realistic overhaul if it is to equip students for the world of work.

Poverty and Plenty: Young Americans at Work and Elsewhere by Edwin Harwood 8
In the most robust economy anywhere, a startling number of employable youths stay unemployed. Why? Because they can afford it.

The Priorities of Innovation by George C. Dacey 14
What factors come first when innovators compete to develop an idea? How do you pick the right breakthrough to back?

Who Gets Promoted? by Don Fyffe 18
A Southwestern Bell man writes about the characteristics and credentials most likely to gain a rug on the floor and a title on the door

The Better To Grow On 22
A photo spread of people active in corporate history's biggest money-raising venture.

A Booming Technology or A Better Environment: Can We Have Both? by Morris Tanenbaum 24
If we will show more concern for the future than we have shown in the past, technology can thrive and at the same time help cure the earth of its ills.

Bell Reports 30
A summary of significant development in communications.

Business Service and Society 32
Excerpts from talks by Bell System officers.

JULY/AUGUST 1970

Parnassus on the Hudson by Don Woodford 2
The historic first home of Bell Telephone Laboratories, site of scientific inventions spanning recordings to radar, starts an appropriately innovative new life as home and workshop for artists.

Who Speaks for the Silent Majority? by Herbert G. Klein 10
"Action need not be violent to be interesting," and more journalists should know it, according to President Nixon's old friend and advisor who is now Director of Communications at the White House.

To Communicate Is the Beginning by H. I. Romnes 14
A different kind of commencement address.

Understanding the Gap Makers by Donald H. Van Lenten 20
Gaps abound, but gaps are only differences escalated beyond reason. If people want to bridge them, they can be bridged.

Business Service and Society 25
Excerpts from talks by Bell System officers.

How the Cities Solved Their Transportation Problems - A Fable by Wilfred Owen 26
Urbanites rescue themselves from the edge of disaster in the nick of time then laugh at how stupid they've been. But not everyone laughs.

Let's See Now 30
A photo feature of people making Picturephones® at the Western Electric Company's Indianapolis Works.

Bell Reports 32
A summary of significant developments in communications.

SEPTEMBER/OCTOBER 1970

Call the Doctor! by Carter F. Henderson 2
A health care specialist reports on some critical contributions of new communications to modern medicine.

Who Should Participate? by John J. Scanlon 9
A more personal, less rigid management modus operandi will evolve as business broadens its goals for the new decade.

Liberty for Women by Susan Brownmiller 12
A journalist-feminist recalls some grim experiences in the male-run world of industry and forecasts a fairer shake for females from here on out.

XUM

Teachers and Technology - An Impotent but Promising Partnership
by Sterling M. McMurrin 21
The former U.S. Commissioner of Education urges new attitudes on the part of teachers, bureaucrats and businessmen so that schools can meet the needs of students.

Bell Reports 26
A summary of significant developments in communications.

You've Come a Long Way, Baby 28
A four-page photo feature of people at work in a Western Electric factory.

Business Service and Society 32
Excerpts from talks by Bell System officers.

NOVEMBER/DECEMBER 1970

Corporate Accountability-To Whom and For What?
by Richard Borwick 2
An authoritative compendium of Washington-based personalities and pressures dedicated to broadening the goals of big business, with recommendations as to how business might best respond.

Voluntarism Is an American Habit by David R. Maxey 9
Volunteers rush in where government and private enterprise sometimes fear to tread, and society benefits because they do.

A Telephone Boutique 16
A photo feature of an experimental marketing venture in Florida where customers pick phones, like cereal, off the shelf.

To Manage Tomorrow by Henry M. Boettinger 20
A report on corporate planning, both good and bad, with some colorful analogies to military planners, good and bad, and why the good ones, corporate or military, usually win.

The Bell System's Role in Data Communications
by William M. Ellinghaus 26
Data communications is blood brother to voice communications, and Bell companies stand ready, willing and able to serve both needs best.

Bell Reports .....
On the inside back cover, a summary of significant developments in communications.
